Brand Analysis Report10

This report provides a comprehensive analysis of Brand performance across multiple dimensions.11

Dimension Scores12

Brand Awareness13

Score: 3.0/5.0 Data confidence: 52/100 Summary: Brand Awareness for Abercrombie & Fitch cannot be robustly assessed due to a lack of direct survey, recognition, and media share data. The only strong evidence is for Brand Search Volume, which is high and consistent. Other sub-dimensions are scored neutral due to insufficient supporting data.14

11/37

Sub-Dimension	Score	Justification
Unaided Brand Recall	3.0	Available data does not include direct survey-based recall percentages or spontaneous mention frequency from research panels. No internal or external survey results, CRM logs, or social listening data are present to quantify unaided recall. As such, the score is set to neutral, reflecting insufficient evidence to support a higher or lower assessment. [data_confidence: 40/100]
Aided Brand Recognition	3.0	There is no evidence of prompted recognition statistics, recognition testing scores, or brand lift percentages from research studies or internal surveys. No data from customer feedback logs, recognition testing, or public recognition studies is available. The score is neutral due to the absence of quantitative or qualitative recognition data. [data_confidence: 40/100]
Share of Voice	3.0	No quantitative or qualitative data is provided regarding the relative frequency of Abercrombie & Fitch mentions versus competitors in media, industry discussions, or public platforms. There are no competitive brand mention frequencies, media monitoring reports, or social listening outputs. The score is neutral due to lack of evidence. [data_confidence: 40/100]
Brand Search Volume	4.0	Google Trends data (multiTimeline (36).csv) shows Abercrombie & Fitch maintains high and consistent search volume, with regular spikes during key periods. The brand's search interest is comparable to or exceeds several direct competitors, reflecting strong and sustained consumer curiosity and engagement. However, the search volume is not at the absolute peak of the category, as some mass-market brands occasionally surpass it. [manual_data:multiTimeline (36).csv]

Sub-Dimension	Score	Justification
Brand Visibility	3.0	No direct data is available on total impressions, ad views, or cross-channel presence scores. There are no marketing campaign performance reports, media tracking, or survey data on where customers see the brand. The score is set to neutral due to insufficient evidence. [data_confidence: 40/100]

Detailed Analysis: 2

The available data for Abercrombie & Fitch's Brand Awareness is limited, with only Brand Search Volume supported by quantitative evidence from Google Trends. This shows the brand maintains high and consistent search interest, indicating strong consumer engagement during key periods. [manual_data:multiTimeline (36).csv]

For Unaided Brand Recall, Aided Brand Recognition, Share of Voice, and Brand Visibility, there is a lack of direct survey data, recognition testing, or media monitoring reports. As a result, these sub-dimensions are scored neutral, reflecting the absence of verifiable evidence. [data_confidence: 40/100]

Overall, the Brand Awareness score is constrained by data gaps in critical sub-dimensions. The assessment is therefore conservative, with high confidence only in search volume trends and low confidence in other aspects due to missing data.

Brand Trust 6

Score: 2.6/5.0 Data confidence: 95/100 Summary: Abercrombie & Fitch's brand trust is hindered by persistent internal reliability and communication issues, as reported by employees. While some progress in ethics and responsibility is noted, ongoing skepticism about management transparency and workplace consistency continues to undermine overall trust. 1

Sub-Dimension	Score	Justification
Perceived Reliability	2.0	Employee reviews on Glassdoor and Indeed consistently highlight concerns about inconsistent management practices, unreliable scheduling, and frequent changes in work hours. Many employees report unpredictability in shift allocation and job security, which undermines perceptions of the company's reliability as an employer. These reliability issues are persistent themes in recent workplace feedback, indicating a lack of dependable internal processes. [glassdoor_reviews], [indeed_reviews]
Transparency & Authenticity	2.0	Workplace reviews reveal that communication from management is often unclear or perceived as disingenuous, especially regarding scheduling, advancement opportunities, and company policies. Employees frequently mention a lack of transparency in decision-making and inconsistent messaging from leadership, leading to skepticism about the authenticity of internal communications. This pattern is evident across both Glassdoor and Indeed feedback. [glassdoor_reviews], [indeed_reviews]
Security & Privacy Perception	3.0	There is limited evidence of significant employee concern regarding data security or privacy breaches within the company. While some reviews mention issues with internal systems or communication, there are no widespread reports of mishandling personal information or major security incidents. The overall perception among employees is neutral, with no

		strong positive or negative trends. [glassdoor_reviews], [indeed_reviews]
Social Proof & Reviews	2.5	Employee sentiment is highly polarized, with some staff praising the workplace environment and peer relationships, while others express dissatisfaction with management, compensation, and advancement. The ratio of negative to positive reviews is relatively balanced but leans toward instability, as trust in leadership and company direction is frequently questioned. This mixed review landscape is consistent across both Glassdoor and Indeed. [glassdoor_reviews],[indeed_reviews]
Corporate Ethics & Responsibility	2.5	While some employees acknowledge improvements in diversity, inclusion, and sustainability initiatives, ongoing concerns about ethical leadership and fair treatment persist. Reviews reference past controversies and skepticism about the company's commitment to ethical practices, particularly in management conduct and advancement fairness. These concerns are regularly cited in both Glassdoor and Indeed reviews. [glassdoor_reviews],[indeed_reviews]

Detailed Analysis: 2

Employee feedback on Glassdoor and Indeed reveals ongoing concerns about the reliability of internal processes, particularly around scheduling, job security, and management consistency. These issues contribute to a perception of unpredictability and undermine trust in the company's dependability as an employer. [glassdoor_reviews],[indeed_reviews]
